

MAJ. BIDDLE SHIFTED

Succeeded by Capt. J. J. Morrow as Engineer.

FORMER GOES TO THE COAST

New Chief Has Been Serving as Assistant—Will Take Rank and Pay of Colonel—Change Made in Accordance with Regulations Limiting Time of Service at Stations.

By order of the President, Maj. John Biddle, Corps of Engineers, U. S. A., has been relieved from duty as Engineer Commissioner of the District of Columbia, and Capt. J. J. Morrow, of the same branch of the service, and at present Assistant Engineer Commissioner, has been detailed as his successor. The exact date upon which Maj. Biddle will retire has not been definitely determined, but it is understood that it will be upon his return from a trip of inspection of the school buildings of New York and Rhode Island.

By order of the War Department, Maj. Biddle, upon his relief from duty as Engineer Commissioner, will proceed to San Francisco, Cal., and relieve Maj. William W. Harts, Corps of Engineers, of the river and harbor duties in his charge, together with the money, records, and property pertaining thereto. He will also report to the commanding general for duty as chief engineer officer of that division, relieving Maj. Harts of that duty.

It was stated by the War Department that the change in the office of Engineer Commissioner is simply in accord with the general rule of the department limiting details to that office to four years.

Capt. Morrow will have the rank and pay of a colonel while serving as Engineer Commissioner. He entered upon the duties of Assistant Engineer Commissioner November 25, 1902, and is thoroughly familiar with the office to which he has succeeded.

Only Thirty-seven Years Old.

Capt. Morrow is a native of West Virginia and is thirty-seven years old. He was appointed to the West Point Military Academy from Allegheny County, Pa., graduating in 1891. He was assigned to the Engineer Corps and served four years at Willets Point, N. Y., and later, two years as instructor in the military academy, from which he was transferred to Washington in 1896, continuing two years as assistant engineer in charge of fortifications. Capt. Morrow has seen duty in Cuba and the Philippines, and it was while on duty in the Philippines, four years ago, that he was transferred to Washington to take up his present post of Assistant Engineer Commissioner.

Throughout the day he was busily engaged in receiving the congratulations upon his appointment as Engineer Commissioner. According to the officials of the District government, it is the best selection that could have been made, his experience as Assistant Engineer Commissioner having made him eminently qualified for the new duties to which he has been assigned.

"I am not contemplating any changes in the methods of the administration of Col. Biddle, nor in the personnel of the office," said Capt. Morrow, yesterday. "If I succeed as Engineer Commissioner as well as I did my predecessor, I shall feel that I have been eminently successful."

Praise for Both.

In reference to the retirement of Maj. Biddle and the appointment of his successor, Commissioner Macfarland said, yesterday:

"I am exceedingly sorry that Col. Biddle is going, and exceedingly glad that, since he has to go, Capt. Morrow is to succeed him. Col. Biddle has served longer than any other Engineer Commissioner, his term having been extended at the request of the District and without his volition, and his service has been greater than that of any other Commissioner."

"Capt. Morrow's experience as assistant and often as acting Engineer Commissioner has given him a thorough grasp of the affairs of the office, and he is prepared for great usefulness. He has shown wisdom, courage, and a real interest in the national capital, and will worthily continue the honorable traditions of the Engineer Commissioner."

Commissioner West also expressed regret at the retirement of Maj. Biddle and pleasure in the choice of his successor.

"The District suffers a severe loss in his departure," said Mr. West. "During his association with me, I have learned to regard his technical ability in the highest degree, and especially I have been impressed with his intense interest in his work. I have been so closely associated with him that his departure is in the nature of a personal loss to me, but he must feel proud of the splendid work which he has done. I am sure that his services here have met with appreciation, and he goes away from a good with the regard of every citizen."

Morrow a Good Choice.

"It is fortunate that Capt. Morrow has been selected as his successor. Capt. Morrow, like Col. Biddle, is an engineer of marked ability, industry, and possessed of a temperament which admirably fits him for the position. It is pleasant to note that his services hitherto rendered in a subordinate capacity have met with the deserved recognition of promotion."

Maj. John Biddle was appointed Engineer Commissioner November 1, 1901, and has served as Engineer Commissioner longer than any other occupant of that position. Among the projects which were begun during his period of service or which have been completed, are: The Connecticut avenue bridge, the Union Station, and the structures connected with the elimination of grade crossings, the sewerage disposal system, including the sewerage pumping plant, the District water pumping station, the new District Building, the public convenience stations, the Business High School, the Police Court building, the Almshouse and Home for the Aged, the Colored Industrial Home School, and many other municipal buildings.

One of his pet projects is the development of Rock Creek Park, and he has worked unceasingly to make the park more attractive and more accessible.

He also prepared the new system of street names in that part of the District of Columbia outside of the city of Washington, and was instrumental in securing the appropriation for a survey and plan for the improvement of the harbor front of the city.

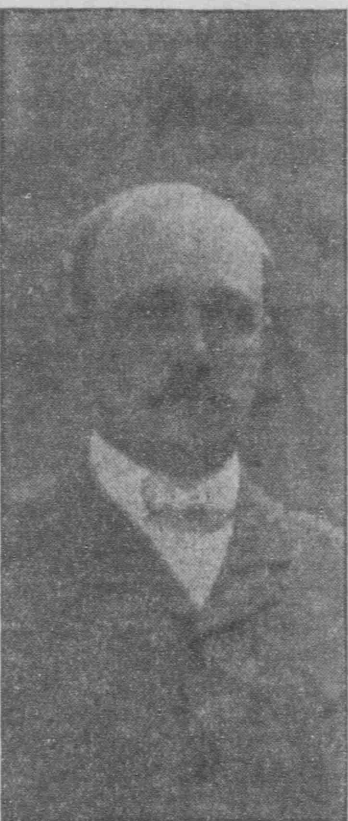

POSTMASTER GENERAL HOME.

Announces Plan for Frequent Inspection of Offices.

It was announced at the Post-office Department yesterday, upon the return of Postmaster General Meyer from his visit to Boston and New York, that it was Mr. Meyer's intention to make personal inspections of the important post-offices from time to time.

Mr. Meyer had a satisfactory trip. In New York he looked into the matter of the purchase of exchange on account of international money orders, and generally examined the money-order department of the New York office.

NEW DISTRICT ENGINEER

Capt. Jay J. Morrow.

HARPER TO BE PRESIDENT

Slated for Election by the Chamber of Commerce.

Charles J. Bell and Capt. James F. Oyster Expected to Be Made Vice Presidents.

Owing to the committee being unable to secure a place of meeting for the Chamber of Commerce next Tuesday night, it was practically decided yesterday afternoon to hold the meeting later in the week, probably Thursday night, though the time and place has not been definitely settled upon.

Yesterday the facts became generally known as to the list of officers which the organization committee will suggest for election at the first meeting of the chamber, the name of Robert N. Harper, president of the American National Bank, will be suggested for the office of president. Charles J. Bell and Capt. James F. Oyster, former presidents, respectively, of the Jobbers and Shippers' Association and the Business Men's Association, will be named as vice presidents. William F. Guile, it is expected, will be secretary. The constitution, providing for thirty directors, will be adopted by the boards of the two bodies forming the merger.

It is understood to be the plan of the new body to have only five standing committees. These will be on law and legislation, building, manufacture, and wholesale trade, retail trade, and transportation and shipping. While these are the only standing committees understood to be provided for, there is room under the constitution to appoint as many special committees as desirable, which will serve at the will of the body. In some cases probably there will be important subcommittees, which will devote their attention to specific branches of the work of the general committees.

The constitution proposed to be adopted by the Chamber of Commerce is said to be a terse and brief instrument, setting forth in simple terms what is intended to be accomplished by the Chamber of Commerce, and providing the machinery for doing it.

RECEIVE B. H. WARNER.

Montgomery County Residents Welcome Him Home.

Residents of Montgomery County, Md., to show their gratification at the return of their fellow-citizen, Brainerd H. Warner, from an extended visit to Great Britain and Continental Europe, extended him a reception last evening in the lecture room of the Warner Presbyterian Church, at Kensington, Md.

Among those present were Thomas C. Noyes, Joseph W. Buck, John H. Fisher, Dr. William L. Lewis, Cornelius Eckhardt, David J. Kaufman, G. W. F. Swartzell, Daniel W. Baker, P. H. Temple, Dr. Eugene Jones, R. W. Stevens, I. H. Hill, W. M. Terrell, J. Harry Cunningham, J. W. Townsend, J. Philip Hermann, Peyton Gordon, Dr. Henry Rumer, R. H. Miles, Frank Dwyer, T. C. Griffin, George Peter, Arthur H. Drick, James T. DuBois, and S. B. Hege.

HINTON FUNERAL FRIDAY.

President of Philosophical Inquiry Society Will Officiate.

The funeral of Charles H. Hinton, second assistant examiner in the Patent Office, who died suddenly Tuesday night in the lobby of the Y. M. C. A. Building, will be held at 4:30 to-morrow afternoon from the chapel in the undertaking establishment of J. William Lee, 322 Pennsylvania avenue northwest.

Rev. Dr. J. McBride Sterrett, president of the Society of Philosophical Inquiry, the annual banquet of which was the occasion of Mr. Hinton's visit to the Y. M. C. A. Building, will officiate at the service. It is probable that a delegation of members of the society will attend the services in a body.

The interment will be made in this city, but owing to the absence of one of Mr. Hinton's sons, no definite plans had been arranged last night.

PACKERS

In the past year our packers have been sent out to work in Boston, New York, Pittsburgh, Youngstown, Ohio, North Garden, Va., and in every case their work has been so well done that very pleasant letters have come from our customers. Some of these packers have been with us most of the sixteen years of our business life, all of which years of experience and careful training behind them. We pack such different articles as automobiles, marble statuary, Tiffany glass, as well as household furniture, pictures, and bric-a-brac.

FAIR FLIES RED FLAG

Masons Auction Off Balance of Their Stock.

END WITH DANCE TO-NIGHT

Another Record-breaking Crowd Buys Bargains and Helps Swell the Grand Total—Ball to Be Cleared To-day for the Ball-Grand Ball at 9 o'clock—Officers Jubilant.

The red flag hung at the madhouse at Convention Hall all day yesterday, and the auction which it heralded was held on scheduled time. No true bargain hunter was ever retarded in his quest by rain or other unpropitious circumstances, and there were 8,000 or 10,000 members of the Chartered Association of Bargain Hunters in the hall when Director General Standford gave the signal to begin the sale.

Not less than a dozen volunteers officiated in different parts of the fair room. They were amateurs at the game, but what they lacked in experience they made up in facility of sight. One young fellow who was nodding an assent to a question his best girl had asked him, found the price of an article he was interested in run up about $5 on him, and he was obliged to cough up to save his face. And he got the article cheap at that.

At the conclusion of the auction, about midnight, the visitors went away happy, with their pockets bulging and their hands clutched to their bosoms, conscious that they had performed a noble deed and bought a brick, or a row of bricks, in the new temple.

"See," said one comely matron to her neighbor. "I just got this lovely handkerchief for a song, my dear. I've been waiting for the closing night, and I would have been here to cry my eyes out if anybody had bought this handkerchief." And the neighbor looked with envious eyes upon the bargain.

Make Good on Estimate.

To relate all the monologues and dialogues along this line would fill a column or so, and the one above is only given as a sample. Gratification was apparent on the faces of President Smith and the other officers of the board of control. They didn't have the time to count up the money last night, and besides, there are a thousand and one details to be wound up before there can be an accurate statement of the finances of the fair of 1907; but it was said at headquarters last night that there was no reason to change the estimate of $100,000 profit. All the returns won't be in for a month or two, and there is even a prospect that the figure named will be exceeded.

The demand for tickets for the ball, which is to wind up the fair to-night, continues at fair headquarters, 1425 New York avenue, and it was steady at Convention Hall last night. Preparations are being made to entertain a large number of people, and all the members of the board of control are doing now is praying for good weather to-night.

The grand march will be led by President B. F. Smith and Mrs. Smith, who will be followed by the other members of the board of control and their wives. The march will start promptly at 9 o'clock, and dancing will continue until midnight, when the fair of 1907 will be declared officially at an end.

This morning C. H. Koster, the contractor for the decorations, will have a force of men at work, clearing the center of the hall. The columns of the booths will be sent to New York to be re-covered, and will be at Saratoga as part of the street decorations at the triennial convocation of the Knights Templars in July. To-morrow the wrecking of the hall will be completed, and Convention Hall will be turned over to its owners on Saturday night empty as it was three weeks or more ago, when the board of control took possession.

At the conclusion of the auction last night, Director General Standford and his assistant waited up and down the entire length of the vast hall. These two men have been at Convention Hall every day since the fair opened, and they are until long after midnight, and they are congratulating themselves that their labors are at an end. With the system they devised at the fair of five years ago, all goods entering the hall were delivered promptly and not a loss was reported.

While the hospital was kept open every night, the fifteen nights of the fair have passed without a serious case of illness being treated. Dr. John E. Walsh, the chairman, and Dr. Clarence A. Weaver, the vice chairman of the committee on hospitals, have divided the time of attendance between them, and each night there have been two or more prominent physicians in attendance, and at least three nurses from the local hospitals. Several ladies stood on the nights when the hall was most crowded, and on most of the nights not a patient appeared.

The police are also breathing easier, now that the big fair is practically at an end. Maj. Sylvester has had a detail of subalterns at Convention Hall every night, under command of Capt. Sullivan, and they have regulated the big crowds without an accident of any kind occurring. At police headquarters in the fair room, Secretary E. B. Hesse has received reports of losses, but none has been of an article of any considerable pecuniary value.

HELPS POOR TO SAVE.

Provident Savings Auxiliary Formed by Associated Charities.

The Provident Savings Auxiliary was formed at a meeting last night in the rooms of the Associated Charities, 311 G street northwest. It is the aim of this auxiliary to get ahead of the need of charity. This will be done by encouraging the poor and needy in the byways and alleys of life to save pennies and small sums during smiling weather. The collectors formed themselves into a band of volunteers to go around and do the collecting. They come from every walk of life—from retired business men and women prominent in social circles to school boys and girls.

Secretary Weller spoke last night of the part savings collections might play in civic improvement. Among the others who spoke were Miss H. Ida Curry, George H. Wilson, secretary of the board of charities, executive committee; James W. Chitt, chairman of the committee; William Hyde, secretary of the committee; Miss Louise Stanton, Mrs. Lotta L. Kimball, Mrs. A. J. Cooper, Miss Mary Cronwell, Mrs. Albert B. Bushnell, and Mrs. S. C. Fernandez, colored, who spoke of the savings collections in the colored social settlement.

PRESIDENT MAKES TRANSFER.

Change Affects Officers in Service of Island of Porto Rico.

The President has decided to transfer William F. Willoughby from the office of treasurer to that of secretary of the Island of Porto Rico, and to appoint S. D. Gromer, of Missouri, to the treasurer's office. Mr. Gromer is an instructor in the University of Missouri.

GRIGGS CALLS FOR DOLLARS.

Wants Loyal Democrats to Aid Fight in Oklahoma.

Representative James M. Griggs, of Georgia, chairman of the Democratic Congressional Committee, sounded a clarion call last night, with echoes at $1 per. He said that the committee intended to make a fight to win every thing in the Oklahoma election, which will be held in August, and that it was assured already of three of the five members of Congress.

"Every loyal Democrat in the country should desire and hope that the new State enter the Union as a Democratic State, and it should be his pleasure and his privilege to assist in bringing about such a consummation," said Mr. Griggs. "I will afford him the opportunity. I hereby call on all Democrats everywhere to send a dollar subscription to the Oklahoma campaign fund, which I will turn over to the chairman of the Oklahoma Democratic State Committee."

'SIX CONSULS TRANSFERRED.

Changes in Diplomatic Service Officially Announced.

The following transfers have been made in the consular service:

Frank D. Hill, of Minnesota, now consul at Amsterdam, promoted to be consul general at St. Petersburg.

Harry H. Morgan, of Louisiana, now consul at Stuttgart, promoted to be consul at Amsterdam.

Edward Higgins, of Massachusetts, now consul at Bern, promoted to be consul at Stuttgart.

James J. Roche, of Massachusetts, now consul at Vienna, promoted to be consul at Bern.

David H. Birch, of Pennsylvania, now consul at Malaga, promoted to be consul at Vienna.

Charles M. Gungley, of Maryland, now consul at Messina, promoted to be consul at Malaga.

Soren Lister, of Minnesota, now consul at Rotterdam, who was recently offered the position as consul general at St. Petersburg, declined the honor on account of the climate at the latter place.

LAND CLERKS DISCHARGED

Woodford D. Harlan and W. E. Volk Are Ousted.

Made Confessions Which Led to the Indictment of Hyde, Diamond, and Benson.

Woodford D. Harlan, of Washington, D. C., and William E. Volk, of Maryland, two clerks in the General Land Office, upon whose testimony in part the government obtained indictments in the Hyde-Diamond-Benson public land frauds, were dismissed yesterday from the public service by order of the Secretary of the Interior.

Harlan and Volk made confessions to special agents of the government in February, 1904, that directed attention to the operations of Hyde, Diamond, and Benson, with the result that the latter were indicted on charges of defrauding the government of valuable tracts embraced in the public domain.

The two clerks were retained in their places until yesterday in order that they might be at hand to testify in the Hyde-Diamond-Benson trials. They were witnesses for the government in the recent trial of former Congressman Binger Hermann, who was acquitted on a charge of destroying public records while Commissioner of the General Land Office.

GIVEN MONEY BY MISTAKE.

Charles Childs Gets Cash Instead of Cigarettes.

The police of the First precinct were surprised, utterly astonished, last night, when a man walked right into the station, unescorted, without friends, without an officer behind him, in fact, all alone, not for the purpose of making a complaint, or to shelter from the rain, but to turn in $25 that belonged to some one else.

"Officer, I have two tens and one five here, real money, that is not my property," said the man to Desk Sergeant Simpson. Several policemen were standing around and a stimulant was necessary to bring them to the man. The man was Charles Childs, of Hyattsville, who had been walking the streets in that portion of Washington where men and women go early and stay late, and he met a stranger, asking him for a cigarette. The stranger passed Childs a box and told him to keep it. Childs walked on. Then he felt for a smoke. Instead he found two $10 bills and one $5 bill. The stranger was missing. Now the police are hunting for the absent-minded one.

KNOX KNOCKS POLITICS.

Senator Declines to Be "Involved in These Great Matters."

Senator Philander C. Knox, of Pennsylvania, was a visitor at the White House yesterday for the first time in several weeks. He was in the President's office only four or five minutes.

"I am not involved in these great matters," said the senator, alluding indirectly to the political conspiracies and other things that have disturbed the administration and the country during the last few weeks.

AIM OF HEALTH DEPARTMENT.

Does Not Keep People Well, but Helps Them to Keep Well.

Dr. William C. Woodward, health officer of the District of Columbia, explained the functions and organization of the health department before the Chemical Society of Washington last night in George Washington University hall. Beginning with a brief history of the organization and development of the department he remarked the popular misconception of its functions, saying that most people thought that it was an agency to keep people well, while in reality it was an agency to help people keep themselves well.

He detailed in a lucid manner the methods in vogue in the department, giving the expenditures and amount of work done by each employe, and lamented the fact that the smallness of the salary decreased the efficiency of the organization. In conclusion, he pointed out that the best method of preserving the health of the Capital was to introduce a more serious course in hygiene, one second in importance to the three R's alone.

MAY DAY CELEBRATED.

Part of Receipts to Go to Moyer-Haywood Defense Fund.

May Day was celebrated by several of the fraternal societies of Washington, half of the receipts being donated to the Moyer-Haywood defense fund. Philip Rappaport, of Indianapolis, spoke of the May Day celebration throughout the world.

The affair was given under the auspices of the Workmen's Sick and Death Benefit Association, the Columbia Turn Verein, the Workmen's Circle, the Columbia Maennerchor, the Italian Social Club, the German Club, and the Economic Educational League.

Education Club Elects Officers.

The Education Club, the new organization of negro educators, met last night at the Washington Conservatory of Music. The election of officers resulted as follows: Prof. Kelly Miller, of Howard University, president; Dr. S. W. Montgomery, assistant superintendent of public instruction, chairman of the board of governors, and Mr. Roscoe Conkling Bruce, supervising principal of the Tenth division, secretary-treasurer.

JAILS BOGUS OFFICER

Secret Service Arrests Fictitious Capt. Clover.

NAME USED TO WORK GRAFT

Gets Valuable Information from Automobile Men on High Power Engine—Real Capt. Clover Loses Nothing by Operations Save Peace of Mind and Postage Stamps.

Capt. Richardson Clover, of the navy, who is on duty here as a member of the board of inspection and survey, is feeling better. He has received word that a man who has been using Capt. Clover's name in the most familiar manner has been captured at San Francisco. The capture was made by Secret Service Agent Harry Moffit. Chief Wilkie, of the Secret Service, thinks he has a good case against the bogus Capt. Clover, although the real Capt. Clover admits that he is not a penny out by the transactions of the other man, except for postage. The operations of the bogus Clover made a considerable increase in the naval officer's correspondence.

It was just about eighteen months ago that Capt. Clover heard of the bogus Clover. He received a $20 for a revolver from a firm in Salt Lake City. Capt. Clover wrote to the firm that he hadn't bought any revolver, and wanted to know the why and wherefore of the bill. The answer was that a man representing himself as "Capt. H. K. Clover, U. S. N.," had personally ordered the revolver and had given directions that it be sent to the St. Charles Hotel in New Orleans.

Orders $250,000 Worth of Autos.

Capt. Clover didn't bother about the matter, but a little later he began to get letters which made him take notice. These showed that the bogus Clover was operating on a large scale. He went to the works of the Matheson Company, manufacturers of automobiles, at Wilkes-Barre, Pa., and won the confidence of the company's officials by a plausible story. He said that he had retired from the navy, and was engaged in the automobile business. He wanted to place an order with the Matheson Company, and would like to inspect its plant. Permission was given, and the bogus Clover went all over the company's works, showing a familiarity with mechanics and engineering that impressed the company's officers.

The upshot of his visit was that he placed an order for $250,000 worth of automobiles. Then he disappeared. The order was suspended before the company had done any work on the machines.

Real Clover Worries and Wearies.

When Capt. Richardson Clover heard all this he put the matter into the hands of the New York police. Occasionally he got word that "H. K. Clover" was continuing operations, always under the name of "Capt. Clover, U. S. N." Sometimes he wore a naval uniform. He was a man of fine appearance, and seemed to have plenty of money and showed that he knew all about machinery.

Recently Capt. Richardson Clover laid his troubles before the Secretary of the Navy, and the latter advised that the case be placed in the hands of the United States Secret Service. This was done, and the bogus Clover's capture followed on Monday. A "very decided double upper lip," as it was described, gave him away.

EPWORTH LEAGUE ELECTION.

Nearly All the Officers Are Renamed by Annual Convention.

L. L. Derriek was re-elected president of the Washington District Epworth League, at the final session of the annual convention, held in Metropolitan M. E. Church, John Marshall place and C street, northwest, last night. Nearly all the old officers were re-elected. The only positions filled by new ones were first vice president, S. S. Culbertson, and recording secretary, Frank J. Metcalf, who was acting in this position in place of Miss Luella V. Kolb, who was lost her life in the Terra Cotta wreck.

Resolutions denouncing her untimely end were unanimously passed. The other officers elected were as follows: Second vice president, Miss S. M. Tilton; third vice president, Miss M. Mitchell; fourth vice president, Miss E. R. Woodward; recording secretary, Frank J. Metcalf; treasurer, F. B. Gilmore. The election of financial superintendent, an office at present filled by Miss Cora C. McEwen, was deferred until the next meeting of the executive board.

A GREAT PIANO OPPORTUNITY

W. F. FREDERICK MUSIC CO.'S

Selling Off Sale of D. G. Pfeiffer's Stock of Fine

Pianos Has Broken All Records in

Piano Selling in Washington.

SALE ENDS SATURDAY NIGHT

1328 F ST. N. W. OPEN EVENINGS.

It is very doubtful if such an opportunity to save money on the purchase of a piano will ever present itself again in the city of Washington as is presented in this GREAT CLEARANCE SALE of Mr. D. G. Pfeiffer's entire stock of pianos.

It is a well-known fact that Mr. Pfeiffer always carried a very fine class of instruments, and it is these pianos that were transferred to the W. F. Frederick Music Co. when the business was merged into the corporation.

This sale, which is rapidly coming to an end, was inaugurated for the purpose of disposing of this entire stock, in order that alterations could be made in the warehouses preparatory to receiving fine stocks of the world's leading makes of pianos.

Many new agencies have been secured by the W. F. Frederick Music Co., among them being the Hardman, Hardman Automobile (self-playing piano), Fischer, Haines Bros., and Kingsbury.

Nearly all the Pfeiffer stock has gone, but what is left is going at most remarkable price reductions, and upon easy terms. It would pay to come hundreds of miles to secure a piano at this great sale.

Among them are Grands and Uprights of the most celebrated makes, and the price reductions, in many cases, are nearly one-half.

It is the policy of the W. F. Frederick Music Co. to advertise and represent nothing but facts, and when they say that this sale will positively come to an end on Saturday night, they mean it. IT WILL END AT THAT TIME. When they tell you that the reductions are nearly one-half, you will find the pianos marked and priced accordingly.

Any one having the slightest desire to own a nice piano and make the greatest saving in purchase price, will do well to take advantage of this sale.

To neglect buying now means bitter disappointment in the future.

The store will be open evenings until 9 o'clock Thursday and Friday nights, and until 10 o'clock Saturday night.

D. G. PFEIFFER, Manager.
